Jose Albert was a friend of Rizal who travelled with him in 1890 from Paris to Belgium, where they agreed to become roommates. Albert pursued his medical studies in Germany to become the Philippines' pioneer in paediatrics. During the 1896 Revolution, he was implicated and imprisoned in Fort Santiago some months before Rizal. During the Philippine-American War, he was appointed Chief of Military Sanitary Service, delegate of the Malolos Congress, and signer of the 1899 Constitution of the short-lived Philippine Republic.
